

Law Tutor
Manchester
Full Time, Permanent

Who we are

BPP is a global education provider delivering apprenticeships, professional qualifications, degree courses and professional development programmes.

The education landscape is changing, and we're excited by the ever-increasing opportunities to thrive in a global market. We're setting ourselves a clear target. To step up. To disrupt. And to truly own the professional education marketplace.

At BPP, we work closely with employers and professional bodies to make our learning as real world, relevant and future facing as possible. We do it for the biggest names and we do it in specialist areas. That includes law, accountancy, financial services, nursing, technology and more. And it covers a range of qualifications to develop careers at every stage and every level of development.

Working at BPP, you are joining a community of committed, passionate and self-determined people. As a business, and in our individual teams, we support each other, encourage new ideas and aim for excellence in all that we do. An ethos of challenging convention runs through the business and we all work together towards our common goal of Building Careers Through Education.

What you'll do

We are seeking Barristers to teach Criminal Litigation, Civil Litigation & Evidence and Advocacy

A Law School tutor has the following core areas of responsibility:

- Teaching on a range of law school programmes and subjects as required
- Creating and marking assessment materials
- Contributing to curriculum development work, including scholarship and innovation, planning and evaluation and updating programme materials
- Providing pastoral support and guidance of students and/or skills development coaching on relevant programmes and modules
- Ensuring regulatory compliance with BPP systems and processes
- Contributing to internal and external BPP marketing, business development, outreach and employability activities.

Through this, you will work with and support the faculty in delivering excellence in teaching, materials and pastoral support within a compliant regulatory framework.

Role requirements

The successful candidate must be a qualified barrister or solicitor with practice experience. They must also have a relevant degree and either higher degree or equivalent professional qualification/experience in subject areas taught by the law school.

You will have the ability to effectively plan, organise and prioritise your workload and work well in a team and be collaborative.

Your strong communication skills will enable you develop rapport and build and maintain working relationships with colleagues and students. Self-motivated, you will have a commitment to vocationally-orientated legal education.

Passionate about student success, you will have the willingness to 'go the extra mile' for students throughout their academic journey at BPP University Law School. It is essential that you have a willingness to be involved in activities outside the classroom.

In addition, you will have excellent computer/IT skills.

What we offer

BPP exists to help people make the most of their talents – just ask the students who study with us every year. We aim to have an equally positive impact on our employees' careers by providing the culture, career development opportunities and extra benefits to inspire you personally and professionally.

BPP invests heavily in your career development – you will have free access to all of BPP's courses. Add to this a comprehensive benefits package, including 30 days' holiday, private medical insurance, life assurance, group personal pension plan and the cycle to work scheme, and you'll find the BPP Professional Education Group a great company to work for.
